A. GENERAL CONDITIONS OF THE WEBSITE AND THE APP

1. The Coople-System

Coople is a recruitment and temporary staffing agency and holds the approval(s) required to operate as such.

Coople uses its website www.coople.com (hereinafter "website") and its Coople app (hereinafter "app") to bring together workers (hereinafter "workers", "users" or "you") and client companies. For reasons of simplicity, this document uses the masculine form only, but this should be understood as referring to both genders. The bringing together of workers and client companies ("matching") is performed using a highly automated process.

'Agents' serve to increase awareness of the website and the app and to support users in navigating and using the platform. Every agent has a personal identification number.

Use of the website or the app is free of charge for workers, client companies and agents.

By accessing the website or the app, the user indicates his agreement with these general terms and conditions of business (hereinafter 'T&Cs'). By clicking the appropriate box when registering as a worker, client company or agent, the user expressly agrees to these T&Cs.

The provisions of the T&Cs not only apply to use of the website or the app, they also form an integral part of any contractual relationship with Coople.

1.1. Other applicable terms

PRIVACY POLICY AND COOKIES POLICY

The following terms also apply to your use of this website or the app:

Our Privacy Policy (Part B) sets out the terms on which We process any personal data We collect from you or that you provide to Us. By using the website or the app, you consent to such processing and you warrant that all data provided by you is accurate.

Our Cookies Policy (Part C) sets out information about the cookies on the website or the app. By using the website or the app, the users, employees and client companies confirm that they comply with the terms of this policy.

SERVICE TERMS

The following terms will also apply to the provision of Our services (where relevant):

Our General Terms of the Assignment Contract or users registered as workers (called "workers") on the website or the app.

Our General Terms of the Temporary Employment Contract users registered as client companies (called "client companies") on the website or the app.

(together, the "Service Terms")

2. Who can use the website or the app and the services of Coople?

2.1. In General

The website and the app are intended solely for natural persons and legal entities, partnerships and corporate bodies with residence or registered office in Switzerland. The website and the app are not intended for persons who are subject to a legal order, which forbids the publication of or access to the website or the app, be it on the basis of the nationality of the person concerned, their place of residence or for other reasons. If one of those conditions is not met (anymore), then Coople can immediately block access to the website and the app without giving any reasons.

2.2. Specific Conditions for Workers

When registering as a worker on the website or the app, the user himself is responsible for ensuring that he is in possession of all documents and permissions required to work in Switzerland. By accepting an offer of employment, the worker further confirms that he is in possession of either a Swiss passport or a type-C permanent residence permit, or holds a valid work permit at the time of the employment.

Should Coople establish that the above prerequisites have not been met despite statements to the contrary, the worker will be barred from the website and the app immediately and reported to the relevant authorities.

Coople must be informed immediately of any change in work status, and in particular of revocation or non-renewal of a work permit. In the event that the worker breaches this obligation to inform and/or reports for work without a valid work permit, he will be liable to pay Coople a contractual penalty of CHF 2,000.—. In either case, Coople reserves the right to claim for additional losses resulting from violations of these provisions.

2.3. Specific Conditions for Client Companies

Users registering on the website or the app as client company must be headquartered in Switzerland. The client company undertakes to observe and abide by all Collective Labour Agreements (hereinafter 'CLA') applicable to his company. The client company is obliged to comply with all employment legislation, the provisions of the Federal Act on Data Protection and other legislation applicable to his company, and hereby confirms that he is in possession of all necessary permits for his company.

In the event that the client company fails to provide details of coverage under a CLA, or if these details are inaccurate or incomplete, the client company will be liable to pay a contractual penalty to Coople of CHF 5,000.—.

Coogle reserves the right to claim for additional losses resulting from breaches of this obligation.

2.4. Agents in Particular

An agent is either a worker of Coople or a representative of Coople. The appointed agent of Coople affirms that he has the required licence(s) for personnel recruitment, if he undertakes more than 10 recruitments per year.

The agents are obliged to treat all data and business secrets made available to them with care and to maintain strict confidentiality.

3. Registration of users

To be able to use the services of Coople on the website and/or the app, each user must first register on the website or the app. He will receive a user name and a password, which he must use for each login to the website or the app for identification purposes.

User name and password are to be kept carefully and not disclosed to any third party. Any damages resulting from the loss or third party knowledge of the user name and/or password are the user's responsibility alone. Any liability on the part of Coople is excluded.

Coogle is entitled to block, withdraw, shut down or alter all or part of the website and/or the app without prior notice. Coople accepts no liability for any periods during which the website or the app is unavailable for any reason.

Furthermore, Coople will not be held liable for damage caused by viruses or other malicious components as a result of use of the website, the app or of the server.

Users are responsible for taking all necessary measures to ensure they are able to access the website or the app. They are also responsible for ensuring that all individuals accessing the website or the app through their internet connection are aware of these conditions of use and of other applicable conditions of business, and that they also abide by these conditions.

Registered users may also take part in our recommendation program. If a user registers for this program he will be provided with a personal recommendation link, which he may forward to his contacts. Further details of this program and the applicable conditions are set out in a separate agreement concluded with the user.

4. Registration of workers and client companies via the agent

A worker or a client company who registered on the website or the app due to the efforts of an agent, must without fail use the link sent by the agent at registration, which allows an identification of the agent.

Workers and client companies registered through an agent remain assigned to the same agent throughout the duration of their registration on the website and the app. A change of the worker or client company to another agent is only permissible if there is mutual consent between the worker or the client company on the one hand and the previous agent on the other hand, if there is a gross breach by the agent or for important reasons. Coople makes decisions about a change at its discretion after consultation with the affected parties.

The worker or the client company must inform Coople about the agent's violation via the contact form on the website or the app.

5. Blocking access to the website or the app

5.1. Principles

The users are obliged to answer all questions truthfully when registering as a worker, a client company or agent and to provide exclusively correct information. Coople reserves the right to make checks regarding accuracy.

If Coople should find out that untruthful or incorrect information has been given, the user's access to the website and the app is blocked and the contractual relationship shall be terminated as of the earliest possible date. In case of inaccurate or untrue information, Coople also reserves the right to take legal action, including the filing of criminal charges.

The users are variously encouraged by the Coople system both at registration and also subsequently, to upload / submit information or documents. The users are obliged to follow these prompts within the specified period or, if no time limit has been specified, within three working days. If the users do not respond after two reminders, this entitles Coople to block their access to the website and the app. The blocking counts at the same time as termination of the contractual relationship as of the earliest possible date.

The access to the website and the app is also blocked and the contractual relationship deemed to be terminated as of the earliest possible date, if a worker or a client company, at registration, does not use the link sent by the agent, although registering on the website or the app due to the efforts of the agent. However, the blocking and termination takes place only after consultation by Coople with all persons involved.

In addition Coople reserves the right at any time and at their discretion to block a user's access to the website and the app, namely for example, if Coople's reputation is at risk.

Claims for damages by a user, whose access to the website and the app has been blocked, are fully excluded.

5.2. Workers in Particular

A worker's access to the website and the app will be blocked particularly, if the worker displays unacceptable behaviour in the service of a client company, repeatedly disregards the instructions of the client company, offers no excuse for not attending a job or commits crimes outside of the service for a client company, which significantly reduce his recruitment capacity through Coople.

A worker's access to the website and the app can also be blocked by Coople, if his rating falls below a specified minimum.

5.3. Client companies in particular

The access of a client company to the website and the app is blocked in particular, if the client company cannot pay the invoices of Coople within the allotted time, if debt collection has been initiated against the client company or bankruptcy proceedings have been opened against it, or if the client company has applied for moratorium. Coople reserves the right at any time to obtain debt enforcement information about a client company.

The access to the website and the app for a client company can also be blocked by Coople, if his rating falls below a specified minimum.

5.4. Agents in particular

An agent's access to the website and the app is blocked particularly, if multiple workers or client companies, who are registered on the website and/or the app via the agent, repeatedly fail to comply with their obligations, namely attending a job or timely payment of Coople invoices.

The rating criteria can be redefined at any time by Coople. The comments of the worker or the client company must be made conscientiously and correspond to the actual objective impression. If the user does not agree with a rating, he can, within five working days after entry of the ratings on the website or the app, raise an objection in writing to Coople stating the reasons why the given rating does not correspond to objective criteria. In this case, Coople will try to find a solution with the affected parties. If an objection is not made in good time, the rating is considered approved and confirmed.
